Historically and architecturally an interesting church, Calvary Baptist has been the church for different denominations including being a synagogue. Though rather unappreciated at the moment this church is one of Annapolis' potential gems. A superb example of "Victorian Gothic" - proto-modern of the "Frank Furness type". Typical upstairs auditorium interior, there is some good period stained glass and some very fine brick work. The west end with its squared "steeple" echoes and complements the west end profile of the Brice House. Preservation is a must and could easily be adopted to non-ecclesiastical office space, etc., leaving exterior intact.		OPEN TO PUBLIC YES
